Basic Eligibility for VA Benefits

Disabled veterans are eligible for VA disability benefits from the VA Claims Insider service connected disabilities list, which lists 833 possible VA disabilities, and is a comprehensive VA disability claims list derived from eBenefits.

In order to qualify for VA benefits by law, a veteran must have an honorable or other than honorable discharge. In addition, a veteran must meet three conditions to get VA compensation benefits, which include:

1. Medical diagnosis of a disability or condition in a medical record. This diagnosis can be in service treatment records, VA medical records, or any private medical records.
2. The disability or condition was caused or made worse by a veteran's active duty military service for direct service connection OR by another service connected disability rated at 0 percent or higher for secondary service connection.
3. Persistent and reoccurring symptoms of the disability or condition into the present day, which we call "severity of symptoms" at VA Claims Insider. Be thinking about "how" your disability or condition is limiting or affecting your work, life, and social functioning.
